Croatian Marinas

Croatia's Adriatic coast, from the westernmost point of the Istrian peninsula to the southernmost reaches of Dalmatia, is one of the most evocative natural destinations for those who love the sea and who wish to experience the primeval touch of a natural environment with a thousand faces.

This craggy coastline is redolent with the intoxicating fragrances of wild Mediterranean herbs, trees and shrubs, such as rosemary, laurel, immortelle, Spanish broom and the strawberry tree that blend with the scents of garden sage, mint, wild thyme and other aromatic herbs on the nearby slopes. The olive, that eternal symbol of time and space, can be found almost everywhere.

Even where nature is markedly lacking in soil man has found a way to protect it by building kilometres of long drystone walls that meander through the secluded glades of islands girdled by the azure sea. That sea, transparently blue, with its atavistic aromas of salt and algae, with rippling wavelets caressing a shore lined with pristine beaches and precipitous cliffs, reflects the sunlight like a dazzling diamond. A thousand islands, islets and reefs, secluded coves and bays, and green pine forests seem as if they are moving down to greet that miraculous marine world - down to the sea, an immutable secret waiting to be discovered, all the while keeping a weather eye out for its sometimes unpredictable whims.

The winds on the Adriatic should never be treated lightly, particularly the bora in the Kvarner Bay and the Velebit Channel. Other winds can be somewhat less awesome, although their strength varies along the northern and southern coast. For example, the landward-blowing maestral, which makes for pleasant sailing along the Istrian coast, especially in the Summer, becomes stronger as it moves south towards Dalmatia. The sirocco, a southerly wind, is more predictable.

It is always possible for sailors to find safe shelter in one of the many well-protected bays or coves. However, it is the marinas, about 50 of them, that are the best places for shelter and protection. They have the most modern equipment and provide technical assistance and quality servicing for the repair and maintenance of all types of vessels. In addition, the marinas have a wide range of other facilities, including excellent cuisine in the many restaurants that are well known to yachtsmen. The marinas are evenly spread out along the coast, sometimes only a few hours' sailing away from each other. They give the feeling that safety is always near at hand and they provide the possibility of meeting kindred spirits from all parts of Europe.

Many Croatian marinas are situated close to historic towns, true treasures of history and cultural heritage. They are filled with museums, galleries, churches, palaces and monasteries. Their streets and shops become stages for contemporary cultural events, concerts, folklore and artistic performances. A joie de vivre and the meeting of a plethora of different languages are vibrant, living proofs of the cosmopolitan nature of the Mediterranean.

From Umag in the north to Cavtat in the south there are more than 50 marinas, 21 of which are ACI (Adriatic Croatia International Club) marinas. The others are either independent or owned by hotel and tourist companies. Almost all of the marinas are open year-round. They provide all of the usual nautical services, although some of them also provide required administrative services (border police, customs, Harbor Master's Office, etc.).

Because of its position near the heart of Europe, the Croatian coast can be easily reached by boat or aircraft, especially from Italy, with which it is connected by numerous ferry lines. For those coming by land the modern A1 motorway ensures a comfortable and significantly shorter trip. Many yachtsmen prefer to cruise in their own yachts because they know that Croatia's marinas provide all the necessary services. Those who elect to rent their vessel will have a choice that ranges from sailing boats to motorized yachts from any of the many charter companies operating within almost all of the marinas.

The desire for relaxation, especially on weekends, and hopefully for a while longer, has become a need for modern man that must to be satisfied - and not only during the Summer. Spring and Autumn offer many advantages while nature is still filled with the surprises of its beauty, permanent yet always different. The days are somehow less frenetic and more peaceful; the sunlight pleasantly soft; the sea barely rippled. From time to time the waters are broken by a leaping dolphin, an unmistakable testimony to the clarity of the sea.

In this publication the Croatian National Tourist Board is pleased to present to those who love sailing images of the marinas that line the Croatian seacoast, which offers the very best for your holiday: romantic coves and sheltered beaches, superb sailing, a natural environment in which to relax and enjoy the widely renowned gastronomic offerings and seafood specialties. The clear, blue Croatian Adriatic, its 1,000 islands and isles, its historic, charming small towns and villages, and its picturesque landscapes all wait to be discovered and explored - whether by sea or by land.

The Croatian National Tourist Board, and its extensive network of nationwide offices, offer a range of informative materials that are always at your disposal. We wish you a blissfully pleasant trip, safe navigation - and a fair wind in your sails!

Last but not least, in addition to the secrets revealed by the sea along your route, we hope that you will take away with you one other authentic experience and image: unspoiled nature and “the Mediterranean as it once was”.

OLIVE ISLAND MARINA

44°05'44" N 15°10'32" E
VHF CHANNEL 17

OLIVE ISLAND MARINA - located in a naturally protected cove in Sutomišćica, on the island of Ugljan. The name of the marina imparts a blend of traditional activities: olive cultivation, culture and sport. Traditional materials, such as wood and stone, combined with those of more modern times, notably steel and glass, create an environment where traditional and hi-tech architecture merge into a harmony between an earthy environment and a kind of imaginary space.

Open: Year-round.

Berths: The marina has 215 berths in the sea, all supplied with water and power (16A, 32A, and 63A). On dry land there are only 25 berths, which are used for servicing of vessels. On-line reservations can be made at www.marinanet.hr Facilities: Reception, restaurant, sanitary facilities (showers, WC), bar, laundrette, swimming pool for small children, nautical gear shop, grocery store, servicing workshop, 30 t travel lift, WLAN, video monitoring, parking lot, bicycle and scooter rentals. The nearest fuel pumps are located in Preko about 2 nm away.

Communications:

The island of Ugljan is only a 20-minute ferry ride from Zadar, but the marina also offers a privately run direct service to Zadar and back. From Zadar ferry lines provide links with the nearby islands and with Ancona, Italy. Zadar International Airport provides good connections with all of Europe. Modern highways link the city with Split (which also has an international airport), Zagreb, Slovenia and Austria.

PREKO MARINA

44°0,49 N 15°11,6 E
VHF CHANNEL 17

PREKO MARINA - located in a small, attractive village on the island of Ugljan, in the central part of Dalmatian coast. The marina offers a genuine island atmosphere in a safe berth, with all the modern conveniences, while its location provides an ideal starting point for yachtsmen to investigate hundreds of tiny isles within the Kornati National Park which is only 23 nm of sailing away.

Open: the year-round

Berths: The marina has 87 berths for vessels up to 20m in length, 3-5 berths for mega-yachts up to 60 m in length. The minimum sea depth is 2 m. All the piers are equipped with water and power supply points.

Facilities: reception area, exchange office, sanitary facilities (shower and WC), laundrette, wireless access to Internet (Wi-fi), waste water discharge, disposal of waste oil, rubbish disposal, 24-hours security provision by way of CCTV. Foodstuffs shop and a grocery are within 50m, restaurant and coffee shops are also in the immediate vicinity. There is a dispensary in the village with the available fast boat transport to a hospital on the mainland, as well as a bank and a post office. The nearest fuel station is in the ferry port located 1,5 nm from the Preko Marina. The island and the village itself offer opportunities for numerous sports activities such as water sports, sports fishing, angling, diving, mountain cycling and trekking. In the season tourist can enjoy many traditional festivities and entertainment programmes.

Transport links: Preko is 2,5nm from the mainland, i.e. the port of Zadar. There are regular ferry lines Zadar – Preko (Ugljan) and Tkon (Pašman) – Biograd, the ride taking about 20 min. Regular bus lines link all the parts of the islands of Ugljan and Pašman.

The Preko Marina also offers its guests a 4 – 5 minutes speed-boat ride to Zadar and back. The nearest international airport is the Zadar airport which is linked by direct flights to all major European cities, and which also handles private flights. A modern road network ensures a speedy arrival to Zadar from all parts of Croatia and Europe. Additionally, Zadar has a very good ferry link with the town of Ancona on the Italian side of the Adriatic.

BETINA MARINA

BETINA MARINA - is situated in the small, picturesque village of Betina on the island of Murter. It is close to two national parks: the Kornati Archipelago and the River Krka. It is one of the most beautiful and intimate places on the Adriatic coast. It grew on the 200-year tradition of boatbuilding in Betina, heir to the ancient Croatian craft of wooden boatbuilding. It is an enchanting location that symbolizes the centuries-long bond between people, boats and the sea. The fruits of the sea from Kornati fishermen, with the taste of salt and pure olive oil accompanied by a glass of intoxicating wine in the quiet of a summer's evening, and the joy of the dawn with clinking of the tools of the old master caulkers, are unforgettable experiences in the Betina Marina.
